Red Sox ownership wishes to thank the City of Fort Myers and its citizens for welcoming the Red Sox into their community. This new union between the Red Sox and Fort Myers promises to be a mutually beneficial relationship. "We are thrilled with our new Spring Training home. We open our arms and embrace not only the city, but the community and all its people. Baseball is not our only priority here in Fort Myers because the Red Sox are a very caring organization and we are very receptive to the needs of the community around us," proclaimed John Harrington.

Haywood Sullivan added, "Fort Myers is a wonderful city and the people have given us a very warm welcome. The Red Sox will impact this city both economically and socially. Our entire organization will reach out to this community and embrace it. We are very happy to be here and we are looking forward to a very long and mutually beneficial relationship with the City of Fort Myers as well as playing in this tremendous baseball facility."

City of Fort Myers
Wilbur C. Smith, III
Mayor

Dear Red Sox and Red Sox Fans:

It is with great joy that on behalf of the citizens of the City of Fort Myers I welcome the Boston Red Sox and their fans to our fair City and to the new City of Palms Park.

While you are in Fort Myers treat yourself to a tour of the Thomas A. Edison and Henry Ford Winter Homes located only a few blocks from the ballpark. These are truly exceptional historical attractions where you can learn how two of America's most brilliant individuals lived side by side in order to spend time together combining their intellects.

You can also enjoy Centennial Park on the banks of the Caloosahatchee River as well as the turn-of-the-century Burroughs Home, the Arcade Theatre for theatrical performances, and the Historical Museum to find out more about our unique heritage.

By this time next year you will also be able to learn and create at the Imaginarium, an interactive hands-on museum. You can see the water tank with their colorful logo just over the center field fence. If you are a golfer we also have two of the finest public golf courses in America for your enjoyment.

If there is anything we can do for you while in Fort Myers do not hesitate to call upon us or any of our citizens to make your stay a memorable one. Meanwhile, let's all get behind the Red Sox, hope they stay healthy and cheer them on toward an American League pennant for 1993. Then a trip to the World Series!

Very truly yours,

Wilbur C. Smith III

Dear Fans:

This Spring marks the beginning of a wonderful new relationship between the City of Fort Myers and the Boston Red Sox organization.

Hopefully this new relationship will develop into one of mutual respect, acceptance and longevity and a relationship that will become very special with the passing of time.

Thanks to the untiring efforts of Mayor Wilbur Smith and with the support and encouragement of the city council members this magnificent new stadium, appropriately named "The City of Palms Park", will stand always as a fitting tribute to Mayor Smith's vision and courage despite a great deal of opposition and criticism.

I am confident in time that all of the citizens of Fort Myers will also come to recognize how dramatically this new stadium and the presence of the Red Sox will impact the economy of the area.

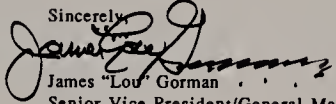

As the "New Kids On The Block" all of us in the Red Sox organization are most anxious to become an integral and vital part of the community.

We are confident that our presence in your area will enhance the already fine image of Fort Myers, our new "Home Away From Home".

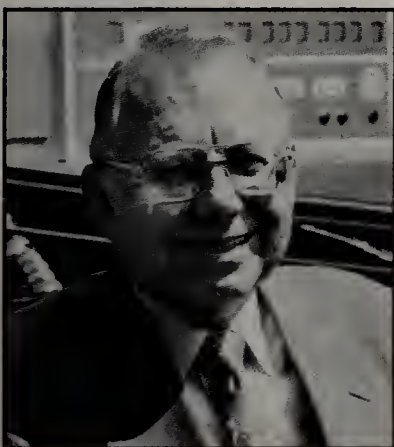

We urge you to come visit us often at this magnificent new ball park. We're certain that once you and your family come for a visit you'll return often in the future.

But whatever you do just don't miss the fun and excitement this Spring at City of Palms Park.

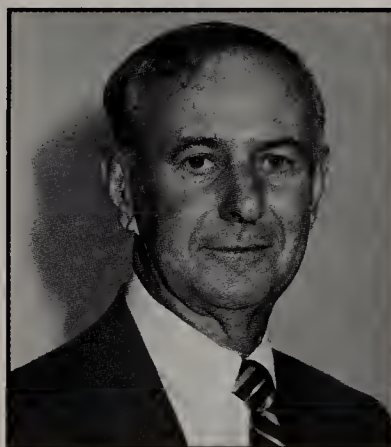

Sincerely,

James "Lou" Gorman
Senior Vice President/General Manager
Boston Red Sox

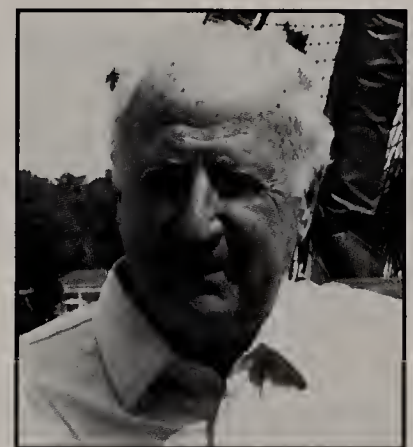

Three long-time Boston Red Sox valued employees retired this past December. Fortunately, though, they have been involved with the preparation and operation of the Red Sox' brand new Spring Training facility here in Fort Myers. The Red Sox were extremely lucky to have had John Donovan, John Reilly and Jack Rogers in their front office for many years. They all contributed greatly to the Red Sox. There is no question their efforts through the years greatly strengthened the organization.

John Donovan began his long association with the Red Sox in 1946 as a clubhouse boy. John's career also included time working in the Massachusetts state legislature and in a successful private law practice, but he always returned to Fenway Park and the Red Sox. He assumed the role of Executive Vice President and Counsel in 1987 and has since been dedicated to the Red Sox.

John Reilly began his tenure with the Red Sox in 1946. John worked his way from a clerk in the accounting department to the position of Treasurer of the Red Sox. John was honored last year by the Red Sox for his forty years of work with the club, and last November he was given special recognition at the Baseball Business Meeting in Phoenix.

Jack Rogers began his baseball career with the old Boston Braves of the N.L. in the 1940's. He joined the Red Sox in 1969 as Traveling Secretary, and became V.P. of Transportation in 1987. Jack has been in Fort Myers since mid-January assisting in the preparation of the City of Palms Park facility while paving the way for players and members of the Sox front office that come to Spring Training.

The Sox regret the departure of these three fine employees and wish them the best in all their future endeavors. Although they will no longer be working at Fenway Park everyday, they will always be an integral part of the organization. The entire organization thanks them for all they have done in the preparation of their new Spring Training home, the City of Palms Park.

How The Red Sox Came To Fort Myers

by Glenn Miller

Fort Myers Mayor Wilbur Smith was looking for a major league baseball team to hold spring training in his city. The Boston Red Sox were looking for new spring training quarters.

The mayor and the team found each other. It appears to be a relationship off to a rousing start with benefits for both the team and the Mayor's city.

For the city: Fort Myers built City of Palms Park and a minor league practice facility only 2.3 miles away from the 7,000 seat stadium. As a result of the stadium project, a run-down old neighborhood was cleaned up and looks better than it ever has. On another level, Fort Myers also will feel fortunate to have the Red Sox family in their city because of the social impact the Sox have on their surroundings. As is their reputation, the Red Sox are extremely responsible to the needs of the community around them.

For the Sox: The team has a slick new practice facility and a home stadium as attractive as any in the Grapefruit League.

Looking at the palm trees and the ballplayers and the thousands of fans and the renovated neighborhood, it's easy to think this happened overnight. Not hardly. It took years of work before it became possible.

Both parties began searching years ago.

As far back as July 1990 city officials began working on the project, hoping to lure the Red Sox south from Winter Haven, their spring training home since 1966.

Also, in a move little noted by sports fans, the Fort Myers City council in 1989 designated central Fort Myers as a redevelopment district. It was targeted for future land acquisition and development of projects. Eventually that move paved the way for acquiring the land for City of Palms Park and constructing the stadium.

In 1990 Smith met with Red Sox officials in Boston to discuss the team moving its spring training base from Winter Haven to Fort Myers.

Things were moving along.

In 1991 Sox attorney John Donovan said the team had looked at 15 cities as possible new spring homes. Fort Myers was one of those cities.

On March 7, 1991 city officials said they wanted to build a 7,500-seat stadium south of downtown.

Two weeks later, on March 21, 1991, Red Sox officials said they definitely wanted to leave Winter Haven. They added that Fort Myers was on the short list of possible cities where they would relocate.

Eight days later, March 29, 1991, Smith told his community that the Red Sox had made Fort Myers No.1 on their list of potential new training sites.

Through the spring and summer and fall of 1991 negotiations continued.

Finally, on December 5, 1991, the city and the Red Sox struck a deal.

Why did the Red Sox, who were looking for a new home, choose Fort Myers? Red Sox General Manager Lou Gorman said a key point was the selling job of Smith, who convinced the Sox that Fort Myers was the place for them.

"He was very persistent," Gorman said. "It was through his untiring efforts. He kept after us. He wanted to have us. We were fully convinced of his sincerity. Pin it down to one thing, it was Mayor Smith."

Three days after the city and Sox agreed to terms, the City Council overwhelmingly approved the deal. That was the last official hurdle to be cleared.

Both sides were pleased.

"We expect to be here as long as anyone can imagine," Jim Healey, the Red Sox Vice President of Broadcasting and Special Projects, said the day the council voted.

Smith, who grew up in Fort Myers, called the deal "historic".

Councilman Richard Bashaw, who served on the city's negotiating team, compared the Red Sox deal to the city's acquisition of Thomas Edison's home many years ago.

The great inventor spent winters in Fort Myers and also built a lab. Both his home, which sits on the bank of the Caloosahatchee River not much more than a mile from the City of Palms Park, and the lab, are now lucrative tourist destinations.

"I remember there were people who said we don't want that old rundown house," Bashaw said.

Bashaw predicts the Red Sox deal will be as big a hit as purchasing the Edison Home.

"After the 15-year lease is up, we're going to have a 590-year lease," Bashaw predicted.

On March 16, 1992 ground was broken for City of Palms Park. In less than a year the stadium was built and handsomely landscaped.

Smith, who has made rebuilding blighted sections of Fort Myers a priority of his administration, sees the Red Sox as part of that effort.

"We view this as a major corporate relocation to the city of Fort Myers," Smith told a Boston reporter. "That brings with it economic growth and additional business opportunities. As the business and corporate world looks at Fort Myers, they see the Red Sox being here as a sign this is a healthy, viable community."

The History Of The Boston Red Sox

(Excerpted from Total Baseball. "Team Histories" by Fredrick Ivor-Campbell and edited by John Thorn and Pete Palmer.)

Since the end of World War Two, the Red Sox have won the American League pennant four times, only to lose the World Series each time in the seventh game. It was not always thus. In their first two decades they were the league's most successful club, winners of six pennants and five world championships. (No World Series was played the year of their second pennant.)

Organized in 1901 as one of four new eastern clubs in Ban Johnson's new A.L. Boston's Americans (or Pilgrims, Puritans, Plymouth Rocks or Somersets, as they were variously called) quickly established themselves as one of the game's strongest teams. Star third baseman Jimmy Collins was lured from Boston's N.L. club to manage the new Americans, and he assembled a team that included such former N.L. standouts as slugger Buck Freeman and Cy Young. Finishing a strong second in the A.L.'s inaugural major league season, the Pilgrims quickly supplanted their N.L. counterparts in the hearts and wallets of Boston fans.

After a third-place finish in 1902, the Pilgrims ran away in 1903 to take their first pennant by 14 1/2 games. In the first modern World Series, Boston overcame Pittsburgh's Pirates.

Boston won again in 1904 after a struggle with New York's Highlanders that wasn't settled until the next-to-last day. The N.L. Giants refused to play Boston in a Worlds Series that year.

Over the next few years, as the Pilgrims dropped into the league cellar, new owner John I. Taylor rid the team of many of the players who had brought it glory. The club, which became the Red Sox in 1907, improved in the final years of Taylor's presidency. In 1911, Taylor had, with his father, purchased land in Boston's Fenway section and built a new ballpark.

Sparked by the spectacular pitching of Joe Wood and Tris Speaker's overall play at bat and in center field, the Red Sox of 1912 took the league lead in June and were never headed, finishing with a club-record 105 victories. In the World Series they edged John McGraw's Giants in one of the most exciting Series ever, four games to three, with one tie. Three years later, with a staff that had the A.L.'s four top pitchers in winning percentage (including rookie Babe Ruth), the Sox captured their fourth pennant. After a first-game loss to the Phillies in the World Series, Boston won four straight.

Joe Wood's ailing arm finally gave out, and Speaker was traded to Cleveland at the start of the 1916 season, but with Ruth winning 23 games the Sox won their fifth flag, and waltzed over Brooklyn in the Series.

That December New York theatrical entrepreneurs Hugh Ward and Henry Frazee bought the club. They put little cash into the team counting on future profits to pay the bulk of the purchase price. Ward sailed for Australia, leaving Frazee to run the club. After a second-place finish in 1917, Frazee hired Ed Barrow as manager, and when many of the team left for military service in World War One, Frazee bought and traded for worthy replacements. In a season shortened a month due to the war, the Sox edged Cleveland for their sixth pennant and defeated the Cubs for their fifth world championship.

Frazee's theater losses put him in a financial bind and forced him to sell off the best of his players--mostly to the Yankees. Though the Sox fell to sixth in 1919, Ruth went to the outfield and startled the baseball world with a record 29 home runs. That winter Frazee sold Ruth to the Yankees for $100,000 and a $300,000 mortgage on Fenway Park.

The Red Sox were embarked on a 15-year sojourn in the second division that even a 1923 change in ownership was powerless to end. In 1932 they reached their nadir, losing 111 games and finishing 64 games out of first.

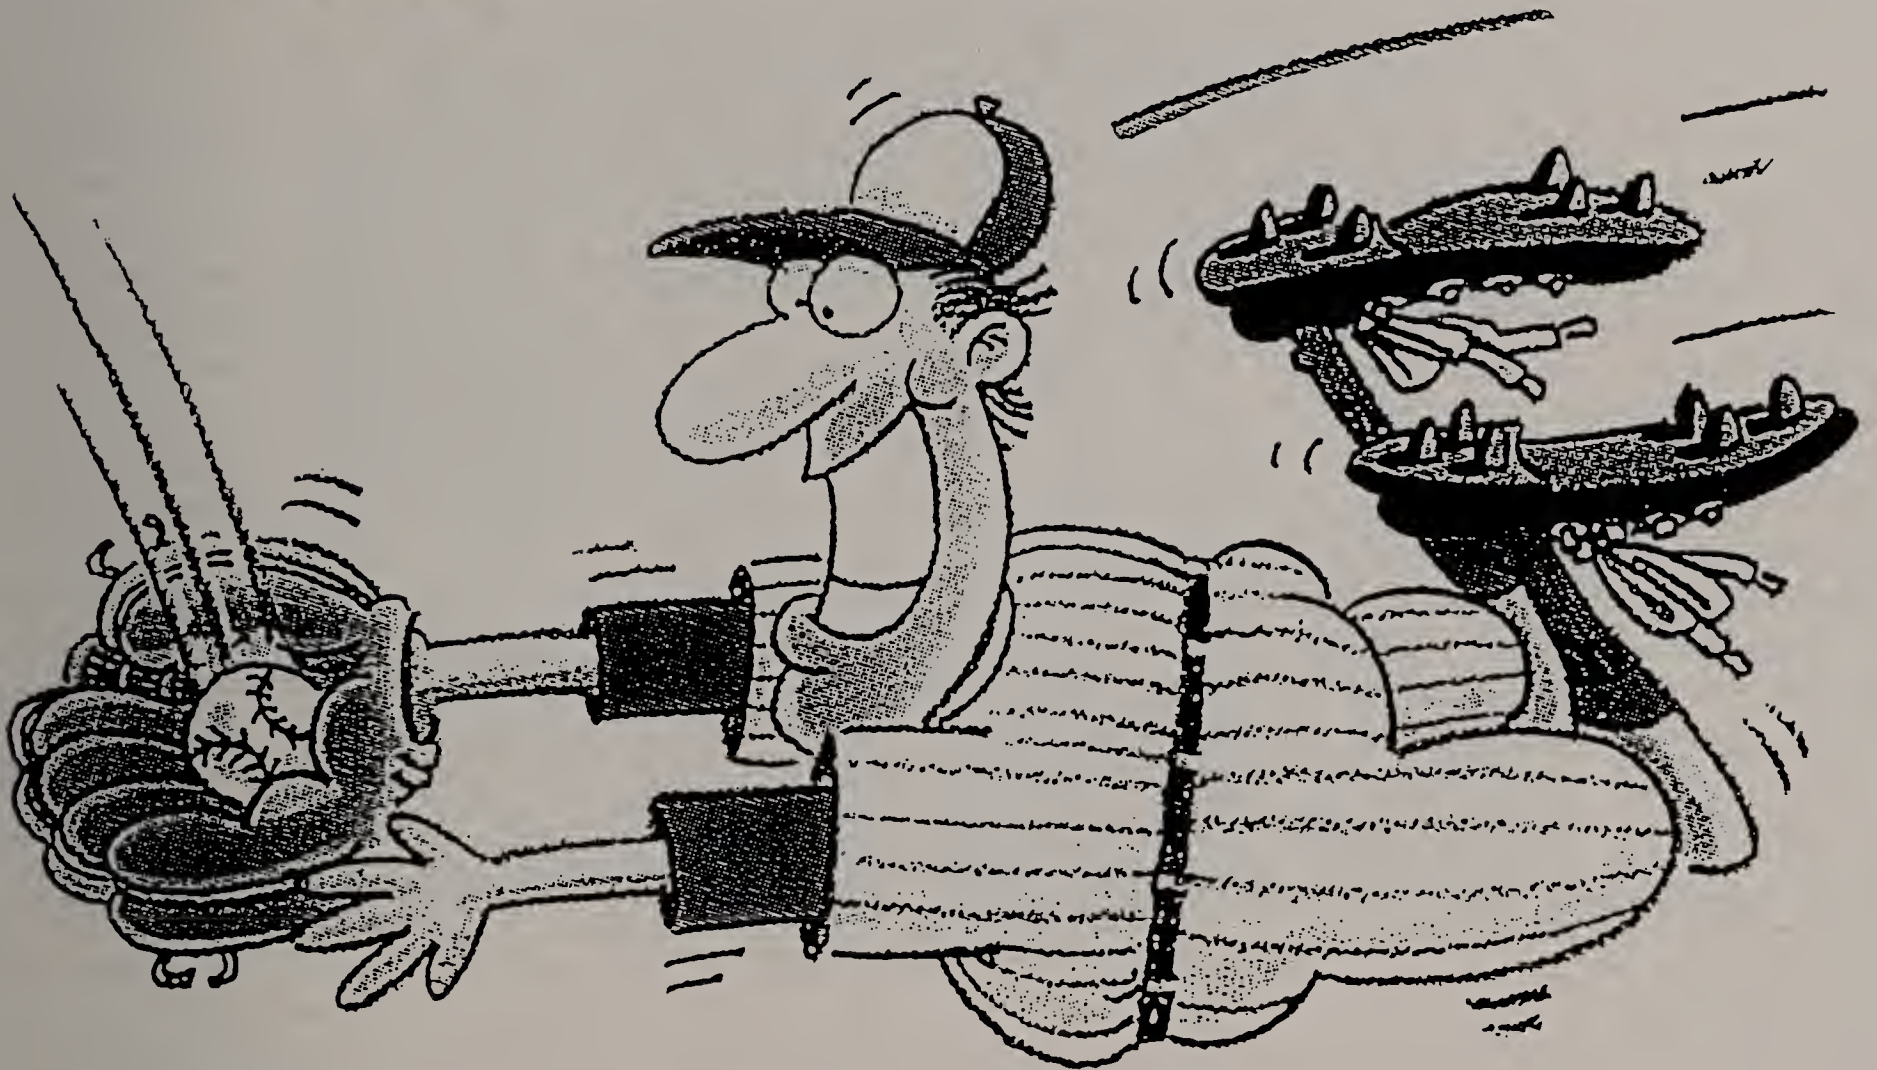

But in 1933, young, wealthy Tom Yawkey bought the club and promptly began a lifetime effort to restore Boston to its former glory. His first efforts to buy ready-made success with such stars as Lefty Grove, Jimmie Foxx and Joe Cronin pulled the club out of the cellar. As general manager Eddie Collins began turning up young players the Sox' fortunes rose. The emergence of Bobby Doerr, Ted Williams and Tex Hughson brought a level of success not seen since 1918.

With 104 victories, the 1946 Sox won their long-delayed seventh pennant by 12 games over second-place Detroit. Only in the World Series was there disappointment as the favored Sox bowed in Game Seven by one run.

In 1948, after falling back in late September, the Sox won their last four to tie Cleveland for first--but lost the one game playoff. The next year they were 12 games behind the Yankees on July 4, but rallied to take a one-game lead into the final two-game series in New York. But the Yankees took both games. In 1950 Boston played the league's best ball from July to pull within a game of the Yankees on September 18, but then lost four in a row and all hope of the pennant.

In 1967 the Sox awakened under rookie manager Dick Williams. A 10-game win streak in mid-July shot them into a four-team race for the pennant that

The New Faces Of The Red Sox

By Kevin Shea

General Manager Lou Gorman and the Red Sox front office have been very busy this past off-season gathering together the ingredients for a much improved team. There are many new faces donning the Red Sox uniform for the 1993 season. The new members bring a combination of experience and depth that will help this team become a definite contender, and bring excitement to the faithful Red Sox fans of New England.

At the winter meetings Lou Gorman began his quest to shape the 1993 Red Sox into an exciting, winning team by signing 16-year ML veteran free agent outfielder Andre Dawson. The "Hawk's" statistics paint the picture of exactly what kind of player he is. He has a career .282 batting average with 399 HR (placing him third among active players), 1,425 RBI and 310 stolen bases. In the past six years with the Chicago Cubs, Dawson hit 174 HR. Last season Dawson hit .277 in 143 games, had 51 extra base hits, and he hit 22 HR placing him eighth in the NL. Andre recorded at least 45 extra base hits in the last 16 years, and the only other major league players to do so are Hank Aaron and Stan Musial. "Andre gives us the additional power and offense we have been looking for; he's a proven winner, an outstanding leader and a tremendous person to have in the clubhouse," Lou Gorman said when asked to describe the impact Dawson will have on the club. The "Hawk," with his talent, leadership and experience, will indeed have a major impact on the 1993 Red Sox team.

Joining Dawson will be 30-year-old DH/OF Ivan Calderon who came to the Red Sox from the Montreal Expos in a trade for Mike Gardiner and minor leaguer Terry Powers. In 1991 this "offensive machine" led Montreal in batting with a .300 average and 19 HR and was selected to the National League All-Star team. Ivan was placed on the D.L. in June of last year when he injured his left shoulder. He underwent surgery and returned to action in September with a bang as he hit .309 in 24 games. Last season Ivan hit .333 against left-handed pitchers, and in 46 games in left field he made only one error. Ivan is a .277 lifetime hitter with 103 HR and 422 RBI. He also brings speed to the Red Sox lineup as he stole 31 bases last year and 32 in 1990. "Ivan gives us a solid contact hitter with some power and a player who can drive in runs," raved Lou Gorman about Calderon.

Right-handed pitchers Scott Bankhead and Jose Melendez are two new additions to an already tough Red Sox pitching staff. Bankhead signed with the Red Sox as a free agent and brings with him a 51-44, 4.12 ERA lifetime record. Last season 29-year-old Bankhead prevented 24 of 28 inherited runners from scoring and held opponents to a .218 batting average. He went 10-4 with a 2.93 ERA in 1992 and prior to the All-Star break he had a record of 9-2 with a 1.94 ERA. Last year Scott had the most wins by a Red Sox reliever since John Franco in 1985. Gorman labels Scott as "an outstanding athlete and competitor" as well as a "very versatile pitcher who can be used as either a reliever or a starter." Jose Melendez joins Bankhead as a newcomer on the Red Sox pitching staff. The Red Sox obtained the 27-year-old in a trade with the San Diego Padres for Phil Plantier. In 1992 Jose made 56 appearances, 53 in relief and three as a starter, and had a record of 6-7 with a 2.92 ERA. Melendez had at least one strikeout in 39 of his 56 appearances, and he prevented 22 of 38 inherited runners from scoring. In his final 40 relief appearances, Melendez only allowed one home run.

Scott Fletcher and Cheo Garcia will add depth to the Red Sox infield this season. Fletcher signed with the Sox as a free agent this past winter after playing with the Cubs, White Sox, Rangers and Brewers during his 10-year ML career. With the Brewers last year Fletcher batted .275, hitting .308 against LH and .336 with

Also adding strong support to the Red Sox is 31-year-old catcher Bob Melvin who signed with the Sox as a free agent. In 32 games last season with Kansas City, Melvin batted .314, hitting .360 against LH pitchers and .400 against the Red Sox. Melvin's defensive skills made him a solid backup behind the Sox' starter, Tony Pena.

Returning to Fenway in a Red Sox uniform is former 1984-85 Sox slugger Mike Easler. Mike is the newest addition to Butch Hobson's coaching staff, and he will serve as the team's hitting instructor. Mike brings with him the vast amount of knowledge and experience that he attained as a ML player for 14 years, as manager of Miami in the Florida State League in 1990, as roving hitting instructor for the Blue Jays in 1991, and as the hitting instructor for the Milwaukee Brewers last season. Under Mike's guidance last season, Milwaukee finished second in the AL in batting with a .268 average while the team finished second in the AL East. Mike is an ordained Baptist minister and a 1985 BoSox Club Man of the Year. Mike's enthusiasm and expertise promise to ignite the Red Sox bats this season.

All the ingredients for a successful season are now gathered together, and this season guarantees to be an exciting one!

Scott Bankhead, Andre Dawson, Bob Melvin and Scott Fletcher are four of the new Red Sox faces who came to Fenway Park last December to meet the press and display their new uniforms.

runners in scoring position. In 13 plate appearances with the bases loaded, he went 6-12 (.500). Fletcher made only 4 errors in 106 games, tying Bill Ripken for fewest errors among AL second basemen. With Texas in 1986, Scott batted .300 with 34 doubles, and in 1990 he led the AL second basemen with 115 double plays. He brings experience to a young infield and possesses a fierce competitive spirit.

The Red Sox acquired the 24-year-old Garcia from the Twins on waivers. Last season Garcia hit .258 in 135 games at AA Orlando in the Southern League. He had 44 RBI, 32 extra base hits and 32 stolen bases. In five seasons in the minors, Cheo has a total of 31 HR and 80 stolen bases. He was named the best third basemen in both the California League in 1990 and the Southern League in 1991. Garcia's defensive skills and speed will bring outstanding support to a much improved Red Sox team.

1993 Boston Red Sox Prospectus

By Butch Hobson

The Red Sox are a greatly improved ballclub due to the number of changes during the 1992 off-season. We believe we have strengthened ourselves with several acquisitions. We added a quality veteran in Andre Dawson. Dawson hit 22 HR with 90 RBI in 143 games last season. Another strong bat we added was Ivan Calderon. Ivan is an outstanding outfielder and a .277 career hitter. To strengthen our infield depth and help our young infielders, we have added Scott Fletcher. To backup Tony Pena we signed Bob Melvin. The acquisition of Scott Bankhead, (10-4, 2.93 in 54 relief apps. with Cincinnati last season) and Jose Melendez, (6-7, 2.92 in 56 apps. with San Diego last season) will give us a strong bullpen to complement our starting rotation.

Speaking of our starters, what better place to begin than with the staff that led all A.L. starters in ERA in 1992. Roger Clemens led the league in ERA and SHO for the 3rd straight season and is without question one of the best pitchers in the game. Frank Viola won 13 games and had a 3.44 ERA while holding opponents to a .242 batting average. He is our number two pitcher but could be number one for many teams. Danny Darwin is healthy and will be our number three starter. John Dopson, Joe Hesketh and Scott Taylor will be fighting for the other starting jobs. Greg Harris has been a workhorse in our bullpen for the last two seasons. Bankhead, Melendez and Paul Quantrill will provide strong middle relief. Jeff Russell will be our closer. Ken Ryan and Daryl Irvine also have a chance to make the staff.

We will have a young infield in 1993, one on which we will build our future. Mo Vaughn has a year's experience at first base and I expect a strong year from him offensively and in the field. It will be a big plus to have Carlos Quintana back, after missing all of the 1992 season. His rehabilitation is coming along as scheduled. Tim Naehring will be at second base. John Valetin, who came up in July and hit 5 HR, will be at shortstop. Scott Cooper will anchor third base. He has a full year of major league experience and hit over .300 as a regular for the last 30 games of 1992. Scott Fletcher and Luis Rivera will give us dependability and experience backup as utility infielders.

Mike Greenwell is hoping to bounce back and have a great season after an injury-filled season which ended in June. He is a .306 career major league hitter over seven seasons. Billy Hatcher and Bob Zupcic will compete for the center-field job in 1993. Both players had a major role in our outfield in 1992, and I expect positive things from them in 1993. Dawson will play right field, and Calderon will be a DH or play right and left field as needed.

HOW BUSINESS IS DONE IN THE SOUTH.

(Awhile Back.)

It's a Southern Tradition. Under a sprawling shade tree, Southern gentlemen traded toasts of cool mint juleps over fruitful propositions, filled with wry remarks. The process often took weeks.

(Nowadays.)

Today, tradition has given way to technology. Welcome to the age of GTE Mobilnet. Because modern Southern gentlefolk barely have time for lunch, much less mint juleps.

TONY LATHAM MEMORIAL AWARD

The Tony Latham Memorial Award is presented each fall to the Red Sox minor league player(s) who show(s) the most enthusiasm during the Florida Instructional League season. Latham, who played for the 1983 Winston-Salem Red Sox, drowned in a boating accident off the coast of Florida while a member of the Instructional League team that November. In 1992 the winners were LHP Ron Allen, OF Ron Mahay and INF Eric "Ty" Norman. Allen, who was signed by the Red Sox as a free agent Sept. 1, 1991, played for Winter Haven. Mahay was the Red Sox 21st pick in the 1991 June draft (18th round) and played for Winter Haven. Norman played for the Gulf Coast and was the Red Sox 17th pick in the 1992 June draft (18th round).

Keep your eye on the ball

It's a familiar refrain in sports: "Keep your eye on the ball." Focus on what's important. The same holds true even when the game is over.

Success starts by keeping our target in sight and our determination steady. We should always keep hold of our goal and aim high for what we want to achieve.

When we give it our all and do our best, it makes us a champion in everyone's eye . . . especially our own.

Beefsteak Charlie's in Fort Myers is locally owned & operated, giving you that hometown feeling. Tastefully attired in Florida garb, accessorized with bright & colorful exotic bird sculptures & art. Steaks are king here. The menu lists sirloin, filet mignon, steak on a stick, top sirloin & New York cut. Charlie does its steak au natural on a flame broiler, blackened, or topped with herb butter or grilled onions.

Barbecue also gets big play on the menu. Barbecue ribs come three different ways. Award-winning baby back ribs, Texas style barbecued pork ribs, & barbecued beef ribs, yes, we said beef ribs, cut from the prime rib eye. Big & juicy. Although steaks & barbecue ribs are popular, the menu also features chicken & seafood. All the excellent food has made Charlie famous, but it is "The Package" that keeps them coming back again & again according to franchise owner, Bruce Zachritz.

"The Package" Zachritz is so proud of is what sets Beefsteak Charlie's ahead of all those other steakhouses. All complete meals come with all-you-can-eat shrimp & garden fresh salad bar, baked potato or rice, bread basket. Shrimp with dinner is great, but there's more, pitchers of beer, wine, sangria, soda or iced tea. All of this at one price.

Beefsteak Charlie's opens at 11 a.m. seven days a week for lunch. Featuring a lunch buffet — "The Mega Bar", brunch served on Sundays 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Children's menu - ages 10 & under. Located on U.S. 41 just south of Colonial Boulevard.

Nationally registered historic landmark

History comes alive as you walk through the front doors of this grand old Fort Myers victorian home. You'll be met by Mona and Jettie Burroughs who will give you an entertaining and informative insight into their lives and lifestyle in 1918 in Fort Myers.

Monday thru Friday tours every hour on the hour from 10 to 4pm.

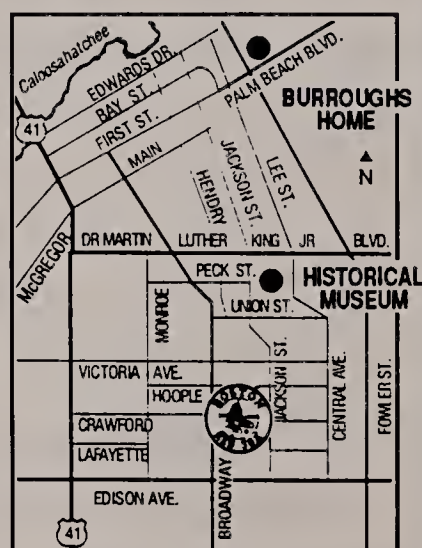

Walk through Southwest Florida's history at our restored 1924 train station, now the Fort Myers Historical Museum. Touch interactive displays and see ever changing exhibits that always offer a new insight into the past. From the ancient Caloosa native American culture to World War II US Army Air Force training bases, you'll experience a wide variety of interesting and exciting topics. Don't miss the new replica Cracker House or the Esperanza, a private railway car from the turn of the century.

*Special collection

GET THE BEST OF BASEBALL FROM THE BEST IN BASEBALL

We take the mound 26 times a year. And as a 12-year veteran, we've developed quite a repertoire. We paint the corners with our special reports and insightful examinations of the trends in the game.

Our colorful features, both major and minor league, will entice you like a lollipop curve. Our draft coverage and prospect lists are nothing but heat, right down the middle. And we may surprise you with an occasional knuckleball, just a tinge of humor and irreverences that helps weave the fabric of baseball.

We blaze the trail for you to follow your favorite prospects up the ladder to stardom, with complete minor league statistics and reports. And even before they sign their first professional contract, we've got our eye on them with college and amateur news.

From Lynchburg to Pittsburgh, Tokyo to Omaha, Baseball America keeps you in touch with the game.

ACE PRESS

was not settled until Boston beat Minnesota and Detroit split a doubleheader on the final day. Carl Yastrzemski, who had replaced Ted Williams in left field seven years earlier, clinched the Triple Crown with a game-winning home run and six other hits in the final two must-win games. But Boston lost the World Series to St. Louis in seven games.

The Red Sox came close in 1972, losing the A.L. East crown by half a game to Detroit. In 1975 led by stellar rookies Fred Lynn and Jim Rice, they swept Oakland in the A.L.C.S. for their ninth pennant. Red Sox fans remember Luis Tiant's 5-4, 163-pitch win vs. the Reds in Game Four, as well as Carlton Fisk's home run that won Game Six. However, the Sox lost Game Seven the next day, 4-3. Owner Tom Yawkey died the following July without the world championship he had sought for more than 40 years.

Boston contended in 1977, but fell 2 1/2 games short. In 1978, the Sox pulled off an amazing finish. After losing a 7 1/2 game, late-August lead to fall 3 1/2 games behind New York in mid-September, they won their final eight games to tie N.Y. In the playoff, Bucky Dent's three-run, pop-fly homer in the 7th inning over Fenway's leftfield wall proved Boston's ruin as the Sox lost 5-4.

Yaz retired in 1983, but Roger Clemens led the Sox in 1986 to their 10th pennant, with a great comeback over California from a 3-1 deficit in the LCS. Dave Henderson's two-out, two-run 9th inning HR and subsequent 11th-inning sacrifice fly in Game 5 in Anaheim kept the Red Sox alive before they won the last two games back in Boston. In Game Six of the World Series they were within one strike in the last of the 10th inning in Shea Stadium against the N.Y. Mets of capturing their first world title in 68 years. But they lost the game, 6-5, and in Game Seven the Series.

In 1988 the Sox won the A.L. East crown. At the All-Star break they were 43-42, 9 games behind in 4th place. Under newly named manager Joe Morgan they won 12 straight and 19 of 20.

In the LCS they lost four straight to Oakland.

Tom Brunansky's game-saving catch with two on and two out in the ninth inning on October 3, the final game of the 1990 season at Fenway, vs. Chicago netted a 3-1 win and the Sox' third division title in five years. Oakland again swept the Sox.

On February 24, 1992, the era of Yawkey ownership came to an end with the passing of Red Sox Majority Owner Jean Yawkey. Mrs. Yawkey had assumed control of the club in 1976 upon the death of her husband, Tom.
